

We've Got the Assange Story Covered

Consortium News is providing blanket coverage of this historic press freedom test case. Here's how you can help.

Consortium News has been all over the Julian Assange story for months as the corporate media turns its attention to it after Assange's arrest last Thursday. But as entertainment has taken over what used to be television news, viewers are being handed partisan opinions about Assange that ignore WikiLeaks' revelations of prima facie evidence of U.S. war crimes, and the corruption of dozens of governments around the world.

Consortium News will begin a series of reports focused on the major revelations of WikiLeaks over the years, filling the gaping holes of mainstream coverage.

Please help us fund our continuing coverage of Assange and other vital stories that are skewered or suppressed by the dominant media.
